BOMA SF Adopts 7-Point Challenge to Improve Energy Efficiency

In response to the ever-growing risks caused by global warming and climate change, BOMA International recently issued a challenge to commercial real estate professionals: Improve energy efficiency across their portfolios by 30 percent within five years, through BOMA’s Market Transformation Energy Plan. The plan outlines a 7-Point Challenge, urging industry members to reduce their use of natural resources, non-renewable energy sources and waste production, in coordination with building management, ownership and tenants.

By accepting this challenge, members set out to accomplish these seven goals as outlined in the plan:

1. Work toward the goal of decreasing energy consumption by 30 percent (against the EPA Energy Star rating of ‘50’), across your portfolio by 2012;
2. Benchmark your building’s energy performance and water usage through the EPA’s ENERGY STAR™ Benchmarking Tool once a year, and share your results with BOMA;
3. Provide education to your managers, engineers and others involved in building operations, to ensure that equipment is properly installed, commissioned, maintained and utilized;
4. Perform an energy audit and/or retro-commissioning of your building; implement low-risk, low-cost and cost effective strategies to improve energy efficiency with high returns;

Attend the 2008 North American Real Estate Congress and the Office Building Show

I hope many of you will join me in attending the 101st Annual North American Real Estate Congress and the Office Building Show in Denver June 22-24. Former White House press secretary Tony Snow will deliver the Sunday keynote address. He will touch on a global snapshot including his perspective on terrorism, economic competition, U.S. foreign policy and the rise of China; the political landscape during the lead-up to the 2008 election; his personal battle with cancer, and especially his unabashed perspective on the things that really matter.

Planning Tips:
A good place to start is by visiting www.bomaconvention.org. This year you must register for the Congress prior to booking your hotel room. After registering, you will have the option to book your hotel room at one of BOMA’s select hotels. Discounted room rates start at $198 per night through the BOMA Housing Office. The rooms in the BOMA room block are not just affordable, they are also first-class and within walking distance of the Colorado Convention Center where most conference events will

ALL IN! That was the popular phrase of the evening from a full house (no pun intended) at the 2nd Annual BOMA SF Texas Hold 'em Tournament held on February 21 at the Presidio Golf Club. Event Chairs Glenn Gilmore, ABM Security; Howard Fish, Skyline Construction; and Mark Kelly, Able Services, did a fantastic job organizing and executing the evening.

Over 100 participants began the evening with high hopes of donning the coveted winner’s bracelet and giving a $500 donation to his/her favorite charity. As each moment passed another player was eliminated.

The six finalists were:
Keith De Mara – Commercial Energy of California
Lesley Snyder – ABM Janitorial Services
Dominic Canicosa – Lincoln Properties
Melody Hanhan – Cushman & Wakefield
Laurie Rummelhart – The Swig Company
Tony Smith – Cushman & Wakefield

Keith De Mara ousted Lesley Snyder for the title and was awarded the bracelet made for the victor. Along with the bracelet, Ken received an iPod, courtesy of Golden Gate Disposal & Recycling, and a $500 donation has been made in his name to his charity of choice, St. Rose Hospital Foundation in Hayward, CA.

BOMA\textsuperscript{YP} Kicks Off their 2008 Events!

Educational & Networking Opportunities Provide Lots of Peer Interaction

By Preston Richards, Boston Properties, 2008 BOMA\textsuperscript{YP} Steering Committee Chair

I am honored to chair the BOMA Young Professionals Steering Committee, aka, BOMA\textsuperscript{YP}. The goal of the committee is to facilitate association awareness and participation opportunities for members in the early stages (0-7 years) of their commercial real estate careers. What started over 2 years ago as grass-roots initiative to get more of the less experienced commercial property professionals involved in the association, has grown into a well-organized and successful group of burgeoning industry leaders. The steering committee, which was formally organized in 2007, has developed a set of offerings that give equal weight to educational programs and networking events that foster peer-to-peer interaction.

This year, the committee will host three Career Success Workshops. These free, lunchtime workshops (lunch is provided compliments of member sponsors) present a quick look at basic concepts integral to property management. Taught by seasoned professionals, the emphasis is on making sure attendees know enough about a subject to ask the right questions, and to encourage them to seek out additional learning opportunities, i.e., seminars, designation courses, etc. This year’s topics include Understanding Acronyms & Terms of the Industry, Understanding the Basics of Reading Plans, and Understanding Key Building Systems: HVAC & Electrical.

The networking events planned include three mixers, including a St. Paddy’s Day event on March 13, and the 1st Annual BOMA\textsuperscript{YP} Spring Boat Cruise to be held in May. These events are designed to help young professionals meet others in similar positions and levels of experience in the industry, and begin to develop the relationships that will last them for years to come.

In addition, we host two BOMA\textsuperscript{YP} Member Benefit Reviews each year. This member orientation is geared toward young professionals, advising them of association benefits and committee involvement, providing an overview of the BOMA\textsuperscript{YP} offerings, as well as touching on professional development and continuing education opportunities.

I encourage all young professionals in BOMA to participate in these activities. If you want to be added to the event distribution list, please email Member Services Director Tory Brubaker at toryb@boma.com with a list of employees that should be notified of these events. This list should include administrative assistants, tenant coordinators, assistant property managers, and associate members in the early stage of their careers.

The U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) is the Federal government’s advocate for comprehensive sustainability and asset management practices. GSA developed the Cost Per Person Model (CPPM) to calculate and enable potential workspace cost savings opportunities, leading to more efficient—and effective—asset management.

What is the Cost Per Person Model?
GSA Cost Per Person Model is an Excel-based planning tool that assesses workspace policy and identifies cost savings opportunities in the areas of workspace, information technology, telecommunications and alternative work environments.

In addition, the CPPM provides measurable results:
• Enables users to compute separately, or in aggregate, the cost per person for workspace, IT, telecommunications, and alternative costs.
• Compares the cost of working in an office facility versus the cost of working in alternative work environments.
• Tracks and establishes both national and regional benchmark costs for workspace, IT, telecommunications and alternative work environments.
• Calculates potential cost savings for various workspace, IT, telecommunications and alternative work environments.
• Analyzes the cost trade-off between greater use of telework and reduced office space in a facility.

The CCPM is a powerful tool that will enable real property professionals to strategically manage their sustainable and asset management programs to obtain measurable results. The measurable results can be used as a resource to formulate real property strategies, policy, and guidance that enable managers to make informed decisions. As an added benefit, this tool encourages real property professionals to think beyond the conventional cost per square foot paradigm and to develop as well as forecast comprehensive plans to support their agency mission.

How can you receive further information?
